3. To secure equitable rates of transportation.

4. To secure legislation in the interest of agriculture.

5. To open up new markets and enlarge old ones.

9. To secure new seeds, grain, fruit, vegetables, etc., from home, and from foreign countries, and distribute them with a view of improving present crops and giving a greater diversity.

7. To report crops in this and in foreign countries, so that farmers may operate intelligently in planting and marketing.

CLEANING OUT LITTLE RIVER

City Authorities Take Energetic Steps to Remove Stagnant Pools.

MUCH IMPROVEMENT.

Drainage Greatly Helped by a Force of Hands This Week.

The condition of Little River became unbearable last week by reason of filth of various kinds being conducted into it in the northern part of the city. A large sandbar of street washings has formed at the mouth of the large sewer on Second avenue and above that point the river is very sluggish and the current was almost imperceptible. Health Officer Woodard and Councilman Higgins were put in charge of the matter Tuesday morning and a large force of hands were put to work in the river removing obstructions and draining the stagnant pools. Much headway was made in a few hours and the work was still in progress yesterday and the situation has been greatly relieved. A rise in the river is anxiously awaited to give it a good flushing.

The recent ordnance removing sewerage from the stream after October will prevent the recurrence of the trouble if the cleaning is kept up until that time.

A great deal of street building material can be taken from the sandbar near the I. C. depot, if some way can be devised to get it up the steep banks.

RESOLUTIONS

In Memory of J. P. Nuckolls Who Died Aug. 14, 1908.

The grim reaper, Death, has again invaded our ranks and taken from us our worthy and beloved brother, J. P. Nuckolls. Bro. Nuckolls was a man of many estimable traits of character, strong minded, but gentle and courteous in manners. He was ever ready to do a kindness for a friend or neighbor, was a skillful

Resolved, That in the death of Bro. Nuckolls his family has lost a loving husband, a kind and generous father, the Grange a useful member and the community a good neighbor and a kind friend.

REFINING ROCK SALT.

Crude Material Melted and Purified by Intense Heat.

A new method of refining rock salt has been discovered. Instead of the old and slow process of liquefaction in water and subsequent evaporation the salt is melted and purified by fire.
 White in a liquid state all impurities are precipitated so as to be easily separated after cooling.

The London Lancet says: "A demonstration of the new process was given quite recently at some works near St.
 Helena. The rock salt was carried in barrows to the top of a huge oven and dropped in on to a metal plate heated to whiteness by gas. Rock salt requires for its melting a temperature of 1,400 degrees F., to which point the table evidently was heated, for it flowed off as a liquid and was not recess below. After a time a quantity was drawn off into a large mold and compressed air was forced into it till a violent ebullition was set up to free it from the precipitation of the impurities to the bottom of the mold. After the mold was allowed to cool it was found that all the impurities had sunk to the bottom, leaving pure white solid salt at the top. The impure portion of the block is separated easily by a blow with a chisel. The pure salt may then be ground to any degree of fineness required. The new method is said to be much cheaper than the old one and much more economical of time, taking hours only while the old one required days. Another advantage is that by the fire process the salt is freed from water and in this anhydrous condition is very slow in absorbing moisture from the atmosphere so that no ingredients need be added to prevent it from "caking." Some hundreds of tons have been refined, tested and analyzed with it is said, quite satisfactory results, and on a large scale are to be erected where the new method can be carried on."

A SANITARY DUSTER.

Portable Vacuum Machine For Cleaning Carpets and Drapery.

The vacuum system of cleaning the interior of houses has been so far perfected that it is now possible for every well regulated house to have one of these machines and with its use to have the work done as thoroughly as if performed by the larger plant which is drawn around on the running gear of a wagon.

The machine occupies a space about eighteen inches square and is less than

PORTABLE DUSTER.

four feet in height. It weighs about seventy-five pounds and being fitted with universal wheels, may be readily rolled about the establishment with little labor. A fan making ninety revolutions per minute creates sufficient vacuum to draw the dust from the draperies and carpets in a very complete manner. The machine is driven either by electric motor or by hand power.
 The electric motor is made use of the current is obtained by means of a flexible cord connection with the electric light circuit.

Automatic Dampers.

The regitherm is a novel apparatus for the automatic control of the dampers of furnaces and stoves, and it acts with such wonderful promptness and energy that the heat of a candle applied for the fraction of a minute will cause it to raise a man of 150 pounds several inches. A small amount of volatile liquid is hermetically sealed in the instrument. As the surrounding temperature rises or falls the vapor of this substance changes its pressure one-half pound per square inch for each degree, and a rise of a single degree develops a force of fifteen pounds within the motor. This force expands the vessel half an inch. The movement is magnified eightfold in transmission to the dampers, changing the latter four inches, and in this way the temperature of the room or building is regulated within narrow limits.

Engine Economy.

Some tests have been made on the Northern railway of France to determine the economy of using one powerful engine instead of two smaller ones.
 The tests extended over six months' time and covered over 12,400 miles.
 Both trains were of the same weight—500 tons. The cost for fuel, oil, maintenance and wages for six months was $761 for the one and $1,041 for the two engines, or a saving of $280. The first cost was $25,280 for the single engine and $17,000 and $12,220 for the two engines.

KEEP THE MOUTH CLEAN.

Sound Teeth and Gums Prime Requisites For Good Health.

"Don't scrub your conscience, scrub your teeth," was the substance of the advice given by Dr. M. H. Fletcher in the American Medical association's section on stomatology, which met recently at Chicago in the First regiment armory. He read a paper on "Diseases of the Alveolar Process." "The gums should be rubbed with a stiff bristle toothbrush," declared the doctor. "The gums should be rubbed as well as the teeth. The gums should be hard and tough, as hard as the palm of a person's hand. No cure of the teeth seems to be the almost universal rule.
 One of my patients put it very nicely to me after I had explained to her the proper methods. 'I thought I had been cleaning my teeth all these years,' she said, 'but I find that I have only been cleaning my conscience.'"

"If the mouth could at all times be kept perfectly clean there would never be any decayed teeth or visits to the dentist. As it is, much that is paid to the dentist could be saved by proper care. Good teeth and healthy gums are prime requisites for good health."

Where Electricity Excels.

Electricity excels all other methods of transmission for convenience, says the Scientific American. An electric cable may be strung where required, and machinery may be arranged in any position without reference to line shafting. There are, instances, however, where rope drive will save both in first cost and in cost of operation, particularly when the process of manufacturing calls for a number of parallel shafts with machines nearly in one plane.

To Make Soft Solder.

An excellent soft solder good for purposes where not much pressure is carried, says Machinery, is made by adding to each pound of lead half melting a teaspoonful of common salt.

FOR KENTUCKY—Generally fair and warmer Thursday.

The Beech Hargis case on a change of venue will be sent to Es-till county.

The Central Federated Union, composed of practically all of the unions of New York, has declared for Bryan and Kern.

Abd-el-Aziz, sultan of Record, is still in the field with a fighting force and is undismayed by recent reverses.
His reinforcements are sweeping all before them.

William Jennings Bryan, Jr., is engaged to be married to Miss Helen Berger, daughter of Alex. Berger, a prominent miller of Milwaukee, Wis.

Friends of Mr. Kimball attribute his defeat for renomination, if such he prove to be, not to his record in Congress, which has been a most excellent one, as even his opponent has admitted, but to Senator Cantrill's intimate relations with the Burley tobacco movement which has swept everything before it throughout Central Kentucky—Lexington Leader.

Kimball announces that he does not yet concede defeat and will make a fight in the convention, and there is some talk of a "dark horse."

It is a sad blow to the cause of law and order that the spirit of retaliation has broken out in Caldwell county and property of association farmers has been destroyed. It is just as great a crime for a "Bob Cat" to destroy tobacco fields as it is for a night rider to sear a plant bed. Let the heavy hand of the law be laid upon both sets of criminals alike. With two organizations of outlaws preying upon each other, there is indeed a need for a Law and Order League in Caldwell county.

morning, as he lives in this city and Beware of Ointment for Catarrh That Contains Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when administered in the manner directed. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is far in excess of the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by Dr. J. C. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally,

WHITE CITY AND THE STATE FAIR.

Louisville's Famous Amuse- ment Park Will Be Open for Visitors From the State.

The White City, Louisville's great amusement park, built at a cost of $300,000, will be kept open through the week of the State Fair to give the visitors from the State an opportunity to enjoy its multitude of attractions.

This announcement is of the great interest to Kentucky people who will visit the fair, as it doubles the inducement of the trip to Louisville.
The White City is the largest amusement park in the country outside of Chicago and New York. It covers enough space for a town, and in its bounds can be found amusement and entertainment unlimited.

The beauty of the White City in itself more than repays a visit. The immense Board Walk, built around a broad lagoon, is surrounded by the buildings and devices, all of them white and handsomely decorated.
At one end of the walk is the Shoot-the-Chutes, the long incline descending to the lagoon, that the ride down the shutters may end in a delightful dash over the waters. At the other end of the lagoon is the large band pavilion. Here the Board Walk broadens into a great area, in the center of which stands the lofty electric tower, a structure of impressive beauty, and when illuminated at night, a dazzling spectacle.
Beyond the tower is the German Village, with its beautiful shade trees. It occupies in itself enough ground for a park. Beyond the village is the immense pavilion, used for concerts, dancing, etc., which overlooks the majestic Ohio river at the most beautiful part of this stream, famed for its scenery. Adjoining the pavilion, on the river bank, is an open air theater and band stand, and further down the restaurant, where one may enjoy a meal beside the river at most reasonable rates.

The Scenic Railway, the longest in the world, is to the south of the Board Walk. A ride on it is a most delightful sensation of rapid travel, and at the same time perfectly safe.
The Figure Eight is a similar device, in which one enjoys a ride that is a continuous whirl and a most fascinating pleasure.

The Shoot-the-Chutes, with its inspiring dash down the long incline and the glide across the waters of the lagoon, is a pleasure of which one never tires. The Canals of Venice afford a trip in a gondola of a quarter of a mile through a reproduction of the Italian city. The amusements of the Board Walk are too numerous to mention, but the Third Degree and the Laundry may be mentioned as affording fun that alone is worth the trip to Louisville.

The White City is situated almost adjoining the State Fair and on the same car line and can be reached without the slightest trouble by all fair visitors. It will be a delightful place to repair to after the fair has been enjoyed, and the White City's beauties and innocent amusements will doubtless please thousands of Kentucky folk during fair week.

U.S. DISPENSATORY

Describes the Principal Ingredients Contained in Peru-na.
Are we claiming too much for Peru-na when we claim it to be an effective remedy for chronic catarrh? Have we abundant proof that Peru-na is in reality such a catarrh remedy? Let us see what the United States Dispensatory says of the principal ingredients of Peru-na.

Take, for instance, the ingredient hydratis canadensis, or golden seal. The United States Dispensatory says of this herbal remedy, that it is largely employed in the treatment of depraved mucous membranes, chronic rhinitis (nasal catarrh), atonic dyspepsia (catarrh of the stomach), chronic intestinal catarrh, catarrhal jaundice (catarrh of the liver), and in diseased mucous membranes of the various internal organs. It is also recommended for the treatment of various forms of diseases peculiar to women.

Another ingredient of Peru-na, corydalis formosa, is classed in the United States Dispensatory as a tonic. So also is capsella classed as a tonic for the mucous membranes.

Cedron seeds is another ingredient of Peru-na, an excellent drug that has been very largely overlooked by the medical profession for the past fifty years. The seeds are to be found in very few drug stores. The United States Dispensatory says of the action of cedron that it is used as a bitter tonic and in the treatment of dysentery, and in intermittent diseases as a substitute for quinine.

Oil of copaiba, another ingredient of Peru-na, is classed by the United States Dispensatory as a mild stimulant and diuretic. It acts on the stomach and intestinal tract. It acts as a stimulant on the genito-urinary membranes. Useful in chronic cystitis, chronic dysentery and diarrhea, and some chronic diseases of the liver and kidneys.

Send us for a free book of testimonials of what the people think of Peru-na as a catarrh remedy. The best evidence is the testimony of those who have tried it.

Buried at Lafayette.

The wife of Dr. Milton Gholson, of Stewart county, Tenn., died Sunday and the interment took place at Lafayette Tuesday. Mrs. Gholson was formerly Miss Naomi Taylor and was married to Dr. Gholson about three months ago. Death was caused from lung trouble.

TABBA FUGITIVE.

Senator From Elizabethtown Skips to Escape Arrest.

Senator W. W. Tabb, of Hardin county, has gone to the bad and has run off, owing about $6,000 to various lumber companies and others, with practically no assets.

The cause of his sudden disappearance was that he was threatened with arrest and criminal prosecution for obtaining goods under a misrepresentation of his financial condition and securing a mortgage on a lot of lumber which he claimed he had paid for when such was not the case.

It seems that he had made a statement over his own signature to Dunn's Mercantile Agency that he was worth $9,000 above all of his liabilities. Upon the basis of these statements he was able to buy large bills of lumber.

The Chestnut Lumber Co., Montgomery, Ala., pushed the matter and has thrown Tabb into involuntary bankruptcy. The Elizabethtown News says:

"His political record has been much discussed in the county and many ugly statements have been made about him. It will be remembered that he wrote a letter to the Democratic voters in the district in the News stating that he would vote for Blackburn for Senator and then voted for Paynter. He refused to vote for Beckham for Senator on the first ballot, when Beckham had his chance to be elected and voted for him afterwards when he had no chance to be elected."

RESOLUTIONS FOR EWING.

Association Committee In Montgomery County Takes Stand.

COMMITTEE IS RAPPED.

Also Favors Cutting Down the 1909 Crop By Reducing Acreage.

The annual election of precinct committeemen by the Planters Protective Association Saturday is creating much interest in some counties. The opposition to Col. Ewing has apparently disappeared, but it is still feared that a secret campaign is being waged against him. The following resolutions by the Montgomery county committee indicate the interest in the matter:

Strong For Ewing.

Clarksville, Sept. 2.—At the county meeting of the Planters Protective Association's committee, Monday, the following resolutions were read, and on motion considered serially. The first and second were adopted unanimously:

Whereas, certain influences or combinations within the Executive Committee of the Tobacco Growers' Association have so nullified our General Manager's acts and have so hampered and embarrassed him in the discharge of his duties that great harm has come to the organization, and may result eventually in his displacement by someone else. Therefore be it

Resolved by the Montgomery County District of the Tobacco Growers' Association in convention assembled:

1. That we hereby declare our faith and confidence in Mr. Ewing as General Manager and Mr. Fort as President and pledge them our hearty support.

Resolved, (2) That we will exert ourselves to elect a county chairman who will be pledged to support them for re-election.

Resolved, (3) That we favor a new constitution either made by a committee and submitted to the counties for their approval or by delegates elected from all the counties in the district.

Preferring the latter plan, and we hereby emphasize our request that the new board of directors at their first meeting, shall call a convention to meet at Guthrie, Ky., at the earliest date practical, for that purpose and to attend to such other business as in their judgment may be beneficial to the Association. We further request that every newspaper in the Black Patch give publication to this resolution urging the different counties to select their best conservative men for this most important duty.

Resolved, (4) That we demand an annual itemized financial report of all receipts and disbursements, beginning with the first of the next new Association year.

The committee on the acreage made a report recommending that the acreage be cut in half. This was regarded as indefinite and an amendment recommending that there should be planted 5 acres for the first 50 acres and one and a half for each additional 50 acres was adopted.

ARMY CHAPLAIN

Writes Entertainingly of War Time Reminiscences in Hopkinsville.

Good Man Who Preached To the Boys in Gray 47 Years Ago.

A few days ago Miss C. Belle Ellis received a remarkable letter from Rev. S. R. Chaddick, D. D., of Gilmer, Tex., a man in his ninety-first year, and a well beloved minister in the Cumberland Presbyterian church, which, among other good things, presents some very interesting reminiscences of war-time Hopkinsville, which no doubt will be appreciated by our readers. We are permitted to use the following:

"I am familiar with the topography and streets of Hopkinsville. I spent the winter and spring of the first year of the civil war there as a Confederate soldier. I was chaplain of the Seventh Texas Infantry. Gregg was colonel. We camped several months in a beautiful oak grove, in the Western suburbs of the town. Not being confined to the lines, I boarded at Col. Henry's, the last house then in that part of the town. I preached every morning in the open grove. Quite a number of the ladies from the town attended the preaching. The boys would spread their blankets for seats, and in good weather there would be forty or fifty women in attendance. Our hospitals were the two Female Colleges, located in opposite parts of the town. As chaplain I passed from one to the other several times a day, and so became known to many of the citizens. The girls used to hail me: 'O Doctor! If we should make some pie'n things and come down to your camp, do you think we could catch some of your captains or lieutenants?' My answer invariably was, 'Yes; make your pie'n things, and come along.' And, sure enough, one of them did capture one of our captains, Captain Camp, and they were married after the war. While there we had a great deal of sickness in our regiment. I buried perhaps a hundred soldiers in the Hopkinsville cemetery. If there are any of the old settlers there yet, who were Confederates, perhaps they will remember me. My regiment was captured at Fort Donelson. The Lieutenant-Colonel and Senior Captain, as also many privates, were killed in that battle. I was at home in Texas at the time, on personal leave of absence, and with orders to raise a company, as two of our companies had become so depleted by sickness that they had to be consolidated.

But here I must stop this line of reminiscent pencil pushing. I am now in my ninety-first year, and tho' I cannot walk about the house and yard without a cane, yet I have no pains or aches; my nerve is steady, pulse good, and head clear." S. R. CHADDICK, Gilmer, Tex.

The airship of to-day is treated in a live, up-to-date article by George H. Guy in the September Review of Reviews. Mr. Guy's survey includes even the achievements of Zeppelin, the Wrights and Captain Baldwin, as reported during the month of August. The fundamental distinctions between the various types of airship are clearly set forth and the information given by both text and illustrations (including an important discussion by Mr. Thomas A. Edison now for the first time published) will be found absolutely indispensable by anyone wishing to keep abreast of the marvelous developments of the current year in this field of invention.

ONLY ONE "BEST"

Hopkinsville People Give Credit Where Credit Is Due.

People of Hopkinsville who suffer with sick kidneys and bad backs want a kidney remedy that can be depended upon. The best is Doan's Kidney Pills, a medicine for the kidneys only, made from pure roots and herbs, and the only one that is backed by cures in Hopkinsville. Here's Hopkinsville testimony:

Mr. Francis Brown, 104 Fourth street, cor. Mechanic street, Hopkinsville, Ky., says: "There is no doubt about Doan's Kidney Pills being all that is claimed for them and you are at liberty to use my name in defense of that statement. I was annoyed for years with backache which came on by spells especially when I contracted a cold. About four years ago I was induced to try Doan's Kidney Pills, procuring them at Thomas & Trahern's drug store, now conducted by L. A. Johnson & Co. I was not disappointed with the results obtained. After taking a dose or two of the remedy I knew that it was acting directly on my kidneys and in a short time the trouble ceased. During the past four years I have appealed to Doan's Kidney Pills some six or seven times when having a light attack of my former complaint and I can candidly state that in each case I have been given quick and lasting relief. Mr. Brown has also used them with equally good results. We both think a great deal of Doan's Kidney Pills and have always kept them in the house."

Binoculars ...Of Love.

By Benjamin Franklin Nayles.

Copyright, 1908, by B. M. Cunningham.

"I tell you," said Callender, "she thinks you are too formal, too cut and dried, too wrapped up in your profession. To her you're a fossil."

"If I were you I'd kick him for saying that," said Gaitley. "Go ahead, Abbott, old man; you're far enough away from the village so that your unbecoming from dignity will never be seen."

"Oh, I'll do worse than that to him some time," returned young Dr. Abbott, glaring with comic malevolence at Callender. "I'll wait until he is injured in some of his schoolboy escapades, and then I'll operate on him. Don't you feel the approach of another foolish act, George?"

The three young men sat in the shade of a huge mass of rock that marked the end of a long, irregular ridge of hills which jutted out from the main range to the west. At the mouth of a tiny canyon just visible from the rocks a cluster of summer cottages showed white against the brown and gray of their surroundings.

George Callender, stretched his bulky body and took out a pair of fieldglasses from a case at his side. "No, Folsom," he replied at length. "I don't feel unusually foolish at present. But this grand air and this sunshine and—well, life in general greatly appeals to me today, and so there's no telling when I shall find it necessary to break out again. By Jove," he went on, pointing the glasses at the faraway cottage where his wife and the dear wife of her friend Hiram were, and—yes, the dear sister of my dear wife aforementioned, all adorned with baskets and making for Flagstaff hill."

"Dear, dear," said Hiram Gaitley; "anybody else in the party?"

"No, none that I can make out. Faint on, though; yes, there is. They're passing Evergreen Inn now, and that creditable simian Ramage has joined them. I believe, Abbott, that's what you called him, wasn't it—a discreditable simian?"

"Callender," demanded Abbott sternly, "does Miss Alice know that you two ungainly wretches entered me away with you this morning without letting me know that she and other ladies were bent upon a picnic today?"

"Miss Alice?" queried Callender. "Oh, you mean little Alice, my wife's sister. Now that I think of it, Folsom, I believe she did say something about asking you to have lunch with them on Flagstaff hill today. She asked if I thought you would care to leave your bug hunting and whether you would make one of so informal a party. I believe I have her!"

He broke off and leveled his glass at the distant hills.

"Well, well," cried Abbott impatiently, "what reply did you make? Something absurd, I suppose. Give me those glasses."

Callender adroitly moved out of reach of Abbott's arm and continued: "I forgot just what I did say, but it must have been something worthy of so ungainly a wretch. They're up on the hill now, Folsom, and Ramage has taken his place beside Alice and is carrying her basket."

"That's a bad sign," Gaitley put in. "That's the way I began on the day I asked Ella to be my wife. You remember that picnic, George?"

"Certainly. Picnics are fatal affairs. I have no doubt that if Folsom were on Flagstaff hill today he'd be the happy man instead of Ramage. By Jove! He and Alice have strolled away from the rest and are picking wild flowers."

Abbott groaned.

"And I thought you were my friends—my boyhood friends. Here, give me those glasses, I say!"

Again Callender eluded his grasp and lightly sprang across a tree trunk which spanned the creek that rattled down from the range of hills and into the plain. Once safely across, he pulled away the log and set it floating downstream.

"We are your friends, Folsom," he declared from the opposite bank. "Haven't we patiently listened to your ravings about Alice for the past five months? Didn't we bring you out with us today on purpose to talk about her?"

"And you," cried the young doctor, turning to Gaitley, "I suppose you're in this attempt to keep me away from Miss—from the picnic?"

"Don't speak so harshly, Folsom," Gaitley returned. "Let's go, leave George and hunt fossils or something."

"I've a notion to hunt you," Abbott answered, and he stepped toward Gaitley.

"Oh, don't, doctor; don't, doctor!" Gaitley screamed in a high falsetto as he sprang down the hill, with Abbott at his heels.

At the creek bank Gaitley paused to look back, and, seeing the doctor still coming, he leaped into the stream and floundered across it.

Abbott stopped at the bank and began to throw stones at his retreating friend. They moved out of range of the missiles and walked downstream until the settlement of cottages came into view from behind the rocks where they had been sitting on the other side of the creek.

Abbott followed them downstream on his side and having out half a dozen epithets at the Callender, after a prolonged look through the glasses at Flagstaff hill, called out:

"Oh, horrors, Folsom, Ramage has taken Alice for a stroll to the top of Flagstaff! They're at the top now. I did so want you for a brother-in-law, and now I'll never have a doctor in the family."

"Stop them; stop them!" cried Folsom, jumping up and down. "Do, please, George, toss over those glasses."

"Couldn't do it. This is a slight one doesn't see every day. There he goes, dropping down on his knees before her. Farewell, Brother-in-law Folsom; farewell forever!"

Desperately Abbott went to the bank, removed his coat and shoes and rolled up his trousers.

"Look out, look out!" cried Gaitley; "he's going to swim for it!"

Abbott plunged in and had hardly taken two steps when he slipped and fell. Immediately he arose again, splashed across the stream and clambered up on the opposite bank.

"Now," he grunted, "I'll show you what it means to torment a peaceable man."

"Wait," called George from a safe distance; "he wasn't dropping on his knees after all, so don't be angry. You wouldn't raise black and white lumps all over our pure, white bodies, would you, Folsom?"

"You'll see," retorted the angry young man as he took up the chase. The two led him along a desolate path, through thickets and over rough prairie grass and rocky stretches of plain. But his blood was in him, and he doggedly kept on. They easily continued in the lead and frequently stopped to shoot back mocking comments and to report what could be seen by looking through the glasses.

"Say," cried George after one such look at Flagstaff hill, "I wish we were nearer, so we could distract Alice's attention from the glasses. She's saying to her, I know she'd be pleased to see you unbending a little."

"That's all she's afraid of," Gaitley took up. "She's told my wife as much lately. She thinks you're a born stiff—er—were born stiff, I mean."

"No," bawled Callender; "he means she thinks you're so wrapped up in your profession that you look after even her love as a secondary affair, and she wants you to consider it the whole thing."

"She thinks," began Gaitley as he dodged a piece of granite which Abbott hurled at him, "that you can't enthuse over anything but strange bugs or fossils or a new disease. We've often told her that she's wrong"—he ducked to avoid another stone—"but we couldn't convince her, and this is our reward—to be stoned—to be chased across country like innocent rabbits."

They were obliged to take up the cross country again, for Abbott was well within them. Down the creek was another log from bank to bank, and they darted across toward the cottages, with Albert in full cry at their heels.

There was no more opportunity for extended banter, although Gaitley now and then flung back a stentorian wish that Alice might see them at the present moment.

When they drew near the cottages, the ladies endeavored to shape their courses so that the bound must cross the foot of Flagstaff hill, but he gave up and ran to kennel at the Evergreen Inn.

He came out an hour later with all the force of the chase removed from his clothing. But the banter of his friends still rankled, and he determined to see Miss Alice at once, then if he had been refused to go back to the city. So he bravely charged up Flagstaff hill to meet his fate.

He found Alice, and at the first opportunity he told her of his love. When, to his unspeakable joy, he found himself accepted he demanded to know whether or not he had heard the truth from his friends in regard to her estimation of his character.

"Yes, I did think that until this morning," answered the young lady. "But I know now that I was wrong, Folsom, dear. Mr. Ramage is a pair of powerful binoculars with him this morning, and I watched you every minute from the top of Flagstaff hill."

"A Genial Occupation."

"It isn't everything," said Alice, "but in life that's just suited to him," said Mr. Hobart thoughtfully, "but I declare it seems as if Jed Loring had landed in the very spot he'd choose above every other."

"I didn't suppose anything would ever suit Jed," remarked Mrs. Hobart, "a man that always thought everybody was better off than he and never any peers to enjoy anything except other folks' misfortune. Where in the world is he?"

"While I was visiting Henry's folks," he said, "Hobart," they took me across the ferry to the island one day. I thought the face of the man that worked the gates looked kind of familiar, and he gazed at me real searching as Henry and I stood there."

"Aren't you Jim Hobart that used to live in Bushy?" he asked me at last."

"I am and still do," says I, "and it's just come to me who you are. You're Jed Loring."

"He nodded that I was right."

"Got a job that suits you here, I guess," I said, for he's grown stouter and looks considerable cheerier than he used to when he was here in Bushy."

"Yes, I have," he said, he real hearty. "Why, this ferryboat runs back and forth every half hour all day long. I've been here for a week, but somebody misses it and gets as mad as fury?"

MOB SCARE

In Owensboro Was Without Foundation.

About a dozen men under the river bank, at Daviess street Sunday night, quietly drinking beer and munching cheese and crackers gave several people a mob scare.

It was a harmless bunch, not counting the harm done to themselves, and instead of looking for somebody they were only trying to keep from being seen by anybody while they participated in a quiet revel in a city where such things usually means to get pulled by the police.—Owensboro Inquirer.

MUSIC UNDERGROUND.

Concert in Nature's Subterranean Theatre.

Probably the most peculiar circumstances under which Mr. Ernest Gamble ever sang were those surrounding his concert in Mammoth Cave. The guests at the hotel there, to give their jaded senses a new thrill, asked him and his company to perform. So they went down into the bowels of the earth, and to the natural theatre several miles from the mouth, with its platform 60 feet high and its roof 100 feet above, with a gallery at the rear, all just as nature made it. Mr. Gamble left his victims of emui on the floor of the theatre, while he clambered up the sixty-foot entrance onto the "boards." There were no footlights, so to keep the theatrical atmosphere and to complete the illusion and also to keep from falling off into the bottomless pit, a guide arranged the torches of the party in a semi-circle of footlights, while Mr.

Gamble with a torch in each hand, let fly in his beautiful bass, "Le Tambour Major."

Bats that had never seen the light of day, owls that had never a voice before, all the sightless creatures of this wonderful subterranean cavern came and ranged themselves about the circle of light, screeching and whistling. It was Orpheus in Hades over again. The effect was solemn and altogether it was very weird and ghastly. The blasé tourists had had a new sensation and Mr. Gamble had made his debut in a wonderful theatre from whose stage Edwin Booth had spoken and Jennie Lind had sung.

RETALIATORS

Adopt Same Cowardly Methods as Night Riders.

Princeton, Ky., Sept. 2.—The retaliation spirit seems to have developed in Caldwell county, according to reports from the Bethany section, five miles north of Princeton.

On Saturday the tobacco fields of Bud Traylor, Noah Nichols, Clay Crennan, William Leech, Lucian Hubbard, Will Carter and Burt Calvert were visited by unknown persons, who cut down many plants and placed bundles of switches with the tobacco, which was stacked in piles.

All the victims are leading members of the Tobacco Association and reside in a community where considerable animosity is said to exist. Calvert was warned by an anonymous note not to attend any more Tobacco Association meetings.
